High density foam sheets durban

The company was originally started in 1963 and has grown over many years to be a significant supplier of EVA, EPDM and more recently related PVC products. At the end of the 1970s and early 1980s EVA was part of a much larger group, Budget Footwear, which in turn was part of Pepkor Holdings and over the years changed its hands both in property and stewardship. The company has survived the rollercoaster that is producing largely due to loyal and committed personnel, some of which have served more than 25 years to the company. EVA has also built a significant injection molding capacity over the past ten years and now provides its own needs, as well as different customer requirements in terms of plastic injection molding. Being a primary producer has not always been an easy-to-use business. The introduction of cheap Chinese imports in the early 2000s led to the disappearance of the South African footwear industry, its factories and large job losses. EVA almost closed due to this change in retail purchase which had a direct negative impact on its customers. EVA has survived the changes in the footwear industry by serving non-footwear related industrial customers. These customers, although sensitive to quality and prices, have remained loyal to EVA and now include a significant part of EVA's regular customers. Among these industrial customers, a John Moffat Prolock (Pty) Ltd ("JMP") company emerged as the largest and fastest growing customer.foam blocks purchased from eva and converted these into sheets, strips, seals etc. the passage in the industrial market has also brought jmp acquiring the control of eva through the purchase of the shares of the then main pension holder rudolph geyser. jmp acquired eva as part of its vertical integration into its supply chain that introduced capital, systems and management into eva that allowed him to survive at very difficult times. with the advent of the implementation of government fees, as well as a concentrated campaign "buy south african" about 6 years ago, the shoe market has again turned that led to old and new customers who approach eva for the supply of materials and components. The eva activity currently consists of about 60% of footwear and 40% of industrial products. the business mix is also 80% local and 20% international in terms of production. The footwear industry has also resumed due to the weakening of the support programmes of the rand and government, such as the pip bags, have helped to save an industry destined for failure. the decision to return to the footwear industry was taken in 2012 by the then eva administrators. eva managers have made the decision to focus on the beach thong market as it has no conflict with other eva customers and has developed the factory to become the largest vertically integrated production plant in South Africa catering for this footwear market sector. from 2014 evahas been assigned as an edcon to rated golden thread supplier as well as being approved as woolworths supplier. eva now produces for many global brands and currently produces in the region of 6 / 7 million beach thongs pairs per year. participation changed in 2015 with john moffatt who put his shares in a private equity company based on South African, endura capital (pty) ltd, in order to focus on the added value side of jmp. eva is now privately owned and managed day by an expert management team with many years of collective knowledge. the company manages a flat organizational structure so that decisions are made quickly and effectively, with capacity now at hand eva must now mitigate the seasonality of the local footwear market, and the relative constraints of labor capital placed on society for a period of six months, we are now exploring various supply agreements in the markets of the northern hemisphere to spread the intensity of the offer for a period of twelve months. We remain optimistic about the fact that early customers of the northern hemisphere will enjoy fine products produced by eva. In terms of Northern Hemisphere customer's eva export quality orthopaedic products to an important orthopaedic supplier based in low countries providing the European area. eva is located at 28 milner street, jacobs, durban south, which has been the seat of the company since 1978. eva currently employs permanent staff in the region of 280 people and seasonal workers of a60 people. EVA remains committed to the principles of Broad Based Black Economic Empowerment, continuous training and development and promotion of staff within ranks.
