

☐

I'm not robot

reCAPTCHA

Continue

Robin cook books pdf free download

Image via WikipediaDr. Robin Cook (born May 4, 1940 in New York City, New York) is an American physician and novelist who writes about medicine and topics affecting public health. He is best known for combining medical writing with the thriller genre. Several of his books have been bestsellers on the "New York Times" Bestseller List. Several of his books have also been featured in Reader's Digest.1. Robin Cook - AbductionDownload2. Robin Cook - BlindsightDownload3. Robin Cook - ContagionDownload4. Robin Cook - FeverDownload5. Robin Cook - GodplayerDownload6. Robin Cook - MindbendDownload7. Robin Cook - MutationDownload8. Robin Cook - SeizureDownload While the meters built into your or audio editor are probably sufficient for tracking and mixing purposes, when it comes to high-precision work - most pertinently, mastering - you might want to get your hands on something rather more serious.Although dedicated metering plugins might not be any more accurate than your integrated meters for measuring standard peak and RMS levels, they add all kinds of incredibly useful features, from K-System and True Peak metering to scrolling histograms and adjustable PPM ballistics. Vu meter vst free download.Feb 17, 2016 Host - Kindle edition by Cook, Robin. Download it once and read it on your Kindle device, PC, phones or tablets. Use features like bookmarks, note taking and highlighting while reading Host.Do they auto tune the voice. Sep 06, 2018 People are under the impression these days that our current crop of artists cannot sing - that they all rely heavily on auto-tune. There are some singers that are fully reliant on it, that is true. But many singers are just amazing vocalists. And still, there is some tuning.The author of the book:Robin CookFormat files: PDF, EPUBThe size of the: 338 KBLanguage: EnglishISBN-13: 9780425177365Edition: Penguin Publishing GroupDate of issue: 11/28/2000The world's bestselling master of the medical thriller, Robin Cook skillfully combines human drama and high-tech thrills with the latest breakthroughs and controversies of modern medicine. Now, in his most daring novel yet, a mysterious transmission from the bottom of the Atlantic Ocean leads a crew of oceanographers and divers PDF to a phenomenon beyond scientific understanding - a discovery that will change everything we know about life on Earth...Until now about the ebook we now have Abduction PDF comments end users have never but quit the writup on the game, or otherwise not read it still. Nevertheless, when you have currently see this ebook and you're ready to help to make the conclusions well ask you to spend time to depart a review on our website (we could submit each positive and negative evaluations). Basically, 'freedom connected with speech' We all wholeheartedly backed. Your opinions to lease Abduction ePub - other visitors should be able to determine in regards to book. This kind of guidance will make us a lot more joined! Sad to say, at the moment we don't have information about this musician Robin Cook. Nonetheless, we would appreciate when you have just about any specifics of the item, and they are able to present it. Mail it to all of us! We have the many check out, in case all the details are generally accurate, we're going to distribute on our web site. It's very important for many people that real regarding Robin Cook. Most of us appreciate it before hand to be happy to go to match us!Download PDF: abduction.pdf Download ePub: abduction.epub Download TXT: abduction.txt Download DOCX: abduction.docx leechers: 10Added on January 1, 2015 by WulfAndrein Books > Ebooks Torrent verified. Book:Robin CookAuthor:Robin CookISBN13: 9780399145384ISBN10: 0399145389Genres:Detective And Mystery Stories American, Communicable Diseases Fiction, Forensic Pathologists Fiction, Equatorial Guinea Fiction, New York N Y Fiction, Medical NovelsLanguage: enmPublished: New York : G.P. Putnam's Sons, 1999.Robin Cook Medical thrillers complete 32 ebook collection, epub (Size: 13.98 MB)Cook Robin-Vector.epub335.39 KB ds store15 KBAbduction - Cook, Robin.epub294.29 KBCover.jpg28.19 KB ds store6 KBmetadata.opf2.54 KBAcceptable risk - Cook, Robin.epub335.21 KBCover.jpg25.02 KBmetadata.opf1.77 KBBlindsight - Cook, Robin.epub326.66 KBCover.jpg32 KBmetadata.opf3.54 KBBrain - Cook, Robin.epub236.05 KBCover.jpg36.53 KBmetadata.opf1.53 KBChromosome 6 - Cook, Robin.epub390.07 KBCover.jpg36 KBmetadata.opf2.36 KBComa - Cook, Robin.epub328.49 KBCover.jpg34.71 KBmetadata.opf1.85 KBContagion - Cook, Robin.epub379.5 KBCover.jpg35.9 KBmetadata.opf2.9 KBcrisis - Cook, Robin.epub382.55 KBCover.jpg21.73 KBmetadata.opf2.82 KBcritical - Cook, Robin.epub630.93 KBCover.jpg21.97 KBmetadata.opf2.97 KBcure - Cook, Robin.epub382.61 KBCover.jpg22.19 KBmetadata.opf4.13 KBDeath Benefit - Cook, Robin.epub414.17 KBCover.jpg29.7 KBmetadata.opf2.25 KBFatal Cure - Cook, Robin.epub366.93 KBCover.jpg24.81 KBmetadata.opf1.47 KBfever - Cook, Robin.epub394.87 KBcover.jpg33.92 KBmetadata.opf1.71 KBForeign Body - Cook, Robin.epub436.5 KBCover.jpg31.45 KBmetadata.opf2.21 KBGodplayer - Cook, Robin.epub331.02 KBCover.jpg25.57 KBmetadata.opf1.51 KBHarmful Intent - Cook, Robin.epub417.9 KBCover.jpg22.16 KBmetadata.opf2.61 KBIntervention - Cook, Robin.epub348.66 KBcover.jpg33.87 KBmetadata.opf3.06 KBInvasion - Cook, Robin.epub307.42 KBcover.jpg42.21 KBmetadata.opf2.48 KBMarker - Cook, Robin.epub703.66 KBcover.jpg22.35 KBmetadata.opf3.03 KBMindbend - Cook, Robin.epub358.46 KBcover.jpg31.76 KBmetadata.opf1.62 KBMortal Fear - Cook, Robin.epub456.7 KBcover.jpg18.94 KBmetadata.opf1.62 KBMutation - Cook, Robin.epub360.61 KBcover.jpg21.89 KBmetadata.opf2.56 KBNano - Robin Cook.mobi665.37 KBNano - Robin Cook.epub456.48 KBcover.jpg49.9 KBmetadata.opf3.66 KBOutbreak - Cook, Robin.epub362.47 KBcover.jpg23.94 KBmetadata.opf2.29 KBSeizure - Cook, Robin.epub706.92 KBcover.jpg43.33 KBmetadata.opf2.46 KBShock - Cook, Robin.epub356.6 KBcover.jpg22.88 KBmetadata.opf2.62 KBsphinx - Cook, Robin.epub383.23 KBcover.jpg39 KBmetadata.opf2.07 KBTerminal - Cook, Robin.epub337.38 KBcover.jpg38.59 KBmetadata.opf2.77 KBToxin - Cook, Robin.epub407.91 KBcover.jpg30.49 KBmetadata.opf2.55 KBVital signs - Cook, Robin.epub458.04 KBcover.jpg26.25 KBmetadata.opf2.55 KBYear of the Intern - Cook, Robin.epub233.46 KBcover.jpg26.23 KBmetadata.opf1.41 KB Contains: Year of the Intern (1972) Coma (1977) Sphinx (1979) Brain (1981) Fever (1982) Godplayer (1983) Mindbend (1985) Outbreak (1987) Mortal Fear (1988) Mutation (1989) Harmful Intent (1990) Vital Signs (1991) Blindsight (1992) Terminal (1993) Fatal Cure (1994) Acceptable Risk Contagion (1995) Chromosome 6 (1997) Invasion (1997) Toxin (1998) Vector (1999) Abduction (2000) Shock (2001) Seizure (2003) Marker (2005) Crisis (2006) Critical (2007) Foreign Body (2008) Intervention (2009) Cure (2010) Death Benefit (2011) Nano (2012) Download torrentseeders:52Robin Cook Medical thrillers complete 32 ebook collection, epubAll Comments The author of the book:Robin CookFormat files: PDF, EPUBThe size of the: 392 KBLanguage: EnglishISBN-13: 9780425106877Edition: Penguin Publishing GroupDate of issue: 1/15/1988Buy the Coma ebook. This acclaimed book by Robin Cook is available at eBookMall.com in several formats for your eBook. By Robin Cook. Fiction: Mystery & Detective - General. Coma ePub (Adobe DRM) can be read on any device that can open ePub (Adobe DRM) files. File Size: 565 Kb.Sep 25, 2013 Hey! The Book Chest is a place where you can download your favourite books for free especially novels, biographies and english literature. The books are divided into different categories. You can search books from the search box in the upper left corner. I will try to keep the blog updated with books. NOTE: Please put in your requests in Sep 28, 2011 Coma: a novel by Cook, Robin, 1940-Publication date 1977 Topics Hospital patients, Coma, Coma, Hospital patients. Download 1 file. ENCRYPTED DAISY download. For print-disabled users. Borrow this book to access EPUB and PDF files. IN COLLECTIONS. Books to Borrow. Books for People with Print Disabilities. Internet Archive Books.Free download or read online The Coma pdf (ePUB) book. The first edition of the novel was published in 2004, and was written by Alex Garland. The book was published in multiple languages including English, consists of 192 pages and is available in Paperback format.Robin Cook Published Year: 2014 Thrillers & Crime Mystery & Detective Horror History & Fiction.Murder and intrigue reach epidemic proportions when a devastating plague sweeps the country. Dr. Marissa Blumenthal of the Atlanta Centers for Disease Control investigates--and soon uncovers the medical world's deadliest secret...Murder and mystery reach epidemic proportions when a devastating plague sweeps the country, killing all in its PDF path. Dr. Marissa Blumenthal of the Atlanta Center for Disease Control investigates--and soon uncovers the medical world's deadliest secret. From the author of Coma and Fever.So far concerning the ebook we've got Outbreak PDF suggestions people haven't but remaining their article on the sport, or not make out the print however. But, for those who have presently read this guide and you are therefore ready to help to make his or her conclusions convincingly request you to take your time to go out of an evaluation on our site (we are able to submit the most negative and positive opinions). Basically, 'freedom involving speech' We all wholeheartedly helped. The opinions to reserve Outbreak ePub -- some other followers is able to determine with regards to a book. These kinds of assistance is likely to make us all far more USA! Sad to say, at this time we do not possess information regarding the particular musician Robin Cook. However, we may get pleasure from in case you have any kind of information regarding the idea, and therefore are prepared to give the idea. Deliver it to all of us! We have the many examine, and if every piece of information are generally accurate, we will distribute on our site. It's very important for us that accurate about Robin Cook. Many of us many thanks in advance if you are ready to head to meet up with people!Download PDF: outbreak.pdf Download ePub: outbreak.epub Download TXT: outbreak.txt Download DOCX: outbreak.docx Number New York Times bestselling author Robin Cook surpasses the "top form" (The Virginian-Pilot) he exhibited in Marker with this explosive novel of a doctor's worst nightmare... CRISIS A partner in an exclusive concierge medical practice, Dr. Craig Bowman has reached an impressive level of success. But this idyllic situation comes to a grinding halt when he's served with a summons for medical negligence--and things get much, much worse. Enter Dr. Jack Stapleton, a medical examiner in New York City and Craig's brother-in-law, who agrees to travel to Boston to offer his forensic services and expert-witness experience to Craig's beleaguered defense attorney. But when Jack's irreverent suggestion to exhume the corpse, and thereby disprove the alleged malpractice, is taken seriously, he opens a Pandora's box. As Craig's life and career are put on the line, Jack is on the verge of making a most unwelcome discovery, of tremendous legal and medical significance--and there are people who will do anything to keep him from learning the truth. "A completely unexpected ending." —USA Today "Shocking." —Booklist "Focuses on a timely topic...most readers should enjoy the ride." —Publishers Weekly Praise for MARKER "A highly entertaining read." —USA Today "A master of medical mystery...a fun page-turner...a perfect, explosive ending." —The Boston Globe "Cook is in top form...a pulse-pounding ending." —The Virginian-Pilot "[A] gripping medical thriller...the denouement crackles to an electric edge-of-the-seat finale." —Publishers Weekly (starred review) "Fans of Cook's previous thrillers will be happy to see the return of two popular characters." —Booklist Praise for ROBIN COOK and his bestselling novels "Straight out of today's headlines." —UPI "Holds you page after page." —Larry King, USA Today "Shocking and thought provoking." —The Associated Press "Dr. Robin Cook certainly knows how to tell a story." —The Detroit News "Fast...exciting...spine-tingling." —The Denver Post "Stern and bracing...[a] suspenseful thriller." —San Francisco Chronicle "A real grabber." —Los Angeles Times "A riveting plot, filled with action." —The San Diego Union-Tribune "Gripping." —The New York Times Book Review "A spellbinder...unbearable tension." —Houston Chronicle TITLES BY ROBIN COOK Crisis Marker Seizure Shock Abduction Vector Toxin Invasion Chromosome 6 Contagion Acceptable Risk Fatal Cure Terminal Blindsight Vital Signs Harmful Intent Mutation Mortal Fear Outbreak Mindbend Godplayer Fever Brain Sphinx Coma The Year of the Intern CRISIS ROBIN COOK BERKLEY BOOKS, NEW YORK THE BERKLEY PUBLISHING GROUP Published by the Penguin Group Penguin Group (USA) Inc. 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014, USA Penguin Group (Canada), 90 Eglinton Avenue East, Suite 700, Toronto, Ontario M4P 2Y3, Canada (a division of Pearson Penguin Canada Inc.) Penguin Books Ltd., 80 Strand, London WC2R 0RL, England Penguin Group Ireland, 25 St. Stephen's Green, Dublin 2, Ireland (a division of Penguin Books Ltd.) Penguin Group (Australia), 250 Camberwell Road, Camberwell, Victoria 3124, Australia (a division of Pearson Australia Group Pty. Ltd.) Penguin Books India Pvt. Ltd., 11 Community Centre, Panchsheel Park, New Delhi--110 017, India Penguin Group (NZ), 67 Apollo Drive, Rosedale, North Shore 0745, Auckland, New Zealand (a division of Pearson New Zealand Ltd.) Penguin Books (South Africa) (Pty.) Ltd., 24 Sturdee Avenue, Rosebank, Johannesburg 2196, South Africa Penguin Books Ltd., Registered Offices: 80 Strand, London WC2R 0RL, England This is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are the product of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously, and any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, business establishments, events, or locales is entirely coincidental. CRISIS A Berkley Book / published by arrangement with the author PRINTING HISTORY G.P. Putnam's Sons hardcover edition / July 2006 Berkley premium edition / August 2007 Copyright © 2006 by Robin Cook Cover design copyright © 2006 by Thomas Tafuri. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, scanned, or distributed in any printed or electronic form without permission. Please do not participate in or encourage piracy of copyrighted materials in violation of the author's rights. Purchase only authorized editions. For information, address: The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014, ISBN: 978-1-101-20609-6 BERKLEY® Berkley Books are published by The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014. BERKLEY® is a registered trademark of Penguin Group (USA) Inc. The "B" design is a trademark belonging to Penguin Group (USA) Inc. PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1 If you purchased this book without a cover, you should be aware that this book is stolen property. It was reported as "unsold and destroyed" to the publisher, and neither the author nor the publisher has received any payment for this "stripped book." ACKNOWLEDGMENTS As usual in writing my fact-based novels, I've had to rely on friends and acquaintances to answer my innumerable pesky questions. It was especially important for Crisis, since the story line bridges medicine and law. Although I thank everyone who was graciously willing to help, those whom I would particularly like to cite are (in alphabetical order): John W. Bresnahan, investigator, Division of Professional Licensure, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Jean R. Cook, psychologist Joe Cox, J.D., LL.M., tax and estate-planning attorney Rose Doherty, academician Mark Flomenbaum, M.D., Ph.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Peter C. Knight, J.D., malpractice attorney Angelo MacDonald, J.D., criminal law attorney, former prosecutor Gerald D. McLellan, J.D., family law attorney, former judge Charles Wetli, M.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Suffolk County, New York This book is dedicated to the contemporary medical professionalism as promulgated by the Physician Charter, in hope that it takes root and flourishes....; Make way, Hippocrates! The laws of conscience, which we say are born of nature, are born of custom. —MONTAIGNE Table of Contents Prologue 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 Epilogue Author's Note About the Author PROLOGUE September 8, 2005 Autumn is a glorious season, despite its frequent use as a metaphor for approaching death and dying. Nowhere is its invigorating ambience and riotous color more apparent than in the northeastern United States. Even in early September the hot, hazy, humid days of the New England summer are progressively replaced by crystalline days with cool, clear, dry air and azure skies. September 8, 2005, was a case in point. Not a cloud marred the translucent sky from Maine to New Jersey, and within the macadam maze of downtown Boston and the concrete grid of New York City, the temperature was a comfortable seventy-seven degrees Fahrenheit. As the day drew to a close, two doctors coincidentally and reluctantly fumbled to pull their ringing cell phones from their belt clips in their respective cities. Neither was happy about the intrusion. Each was fearful that the melodic ring would herald a crisis that would require their professional attention and presence. An inopportune interruption, as both individuals were anticipating interesting personal evening activities. Unfortunately, the doctors' intuitions were correct, since both calls were to give credence to autumn's metaphorical reputation. The call in Boston concerned someone about to die with the acute onset of chest pain, profound weakness, and difficulty breathing, while the one in New York was about someone recently but clearly already dead. Both situations were emergencies for the respective physicians, necessitating that they put their private plans on hold. What the doctors didn't know was that one of the calls would initiate a sequence of events that would seriously impact them both, put both in jeopardy, and turn them into bitter enemies, and the other call would ultimately put a different spin on the first! BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 7:10 p.m. Dr. Craig Bowman let his arms dangle at his sides for a moment to relieve his aching forearm muscles. He had been standing in front of the mirror that was attached to the backside of the closet door, struggling to tie a black formal bow tie. He'd worn a tuxedo at most a half dozen times in his life, the first time at his high-school prom and the last time when he got married, and on all of those previous occasions, he'd been satisfied to snap on a pre-tied model that came with the rented tux. But now, in his reincarnation of himself, he wanted the genuine article. He'd bought himself a brand-new tuxedo and wasn't about to settle for a fake tie. The trouble was, he really didn't know how to tie it and had been embarrassed to ask the salesclerk. At the time, he hadn't been worried since he figured it would somehow be similar to tying his shoes. Sadly, it was proving to be a lot different, and he had been attempting to tie the blasted thing for a good ten minutes. Luckily, Leona, his new and dynamite secretary-cum-life clerk and even newer companion, had been preoccupied with her makeup in the bathroom. Worst case, he'd have to ask her if she knew how to do it. Craig really didn't want to do that. They hadn't been seeing each other socially that long, and Craig preferred that she maintain her apparent belief in his sophistication, fearing he'd otherwise never hear the end of it. Leona had what his maternally receptionist-secretary and his nurse called a "mouth." Tactfulness wasn't her strong suit. Craig shot a quick glance in Leona's direction. The door to the bathroom was ajar, and she was doing her eyes, but all he could see was a side view of her curvaceous twenty-three-year-old derrière covered with a lustrous pink silk crepe. She was on her tiptoes, leaning over the sink to get closer to the mirror. A fleeting, self-satisfied smile passed over Craig's face as he thought of them walking down the aisle of Symphony Hall that evening, which was why they were getting decked out in their finery. Compensating for being a "mouth," Leona was a "looker," especially in the low-cut dress that they had recently bought at Neiman Marcus. He was sure she was going to turn some heads and that he'd be dodging some envious looks from fellow forty-five-year-old men. Craig realized such feelings were rather juvenile, to say the least, but he'd not felt them since that first time he'd worn a tuxedo, and he was going to enjoy it. WC2R 0RL, England This is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are the product of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously, and any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, business establishments, events, or locales is entirely coincidental. CRISIS A Berkley Book / published by arrangement with the author PRINTING HISTORY G.P. Putnam's Sons hardcover edition / July 2006 Berkley premium edition / August 2007 Copyright © 2006 by Robin Cook Cover design copyright © 2006 by Thomas Tafuri. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, scanned, or distributed in any printed or electronic form without permission. Please do not participate in or encourage piracy of copyrighted materials in violation of the author's rights. Purchase only authorized editions. For information, address: The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014, ISBN: 978-1-101-20609-6 BERKLEY® Berkley Books are published by The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014. BERKLEY® is a registered trademark of Penguin Group (USA) Inc. The "B" design is a trademark belonging to Penguin Group (USA) Inc. PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1 If you purchased this book without a cover, you should be aware that this book is stolen property. It was reported as "unsold and destroyed" to the publisher, and neither the author nor the publisher has received any payment for this "stripped book." ACKNOWLEDGMENTS As usual in writing my fact-based novels, I've had to rely on friends and acquaintances to answer my innumerable pesky questions. It was especially important for Crisis, since the story line bridges medicine and law. Although I thank everyone who was graciously willing to help, those whom I would particularly like to cite are (in alphabetical order): John W. Bresnahan, investigator, Division of Professional Licensure, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Jean R. Cook, psychologist Joe Cox, J.D., LL.M., tax and estate-planning attorney Rose Doherty, academician Mark Flomenbaum, M.D., Ph.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Peter C. Knight, J.D., malpractice attorney Angelo MacDonald, J.D., criminal law attorney, former prosecutor Gerald D. McLellan, J.D., family law attorney, former judge Charles Wetli, M.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Suffolk County, New York This book is dedicated to the contemporary medical professionalism as promulgated by the Physician Charter, in hope that it takes root and flourishes....; Make way, Hippocrates! The laws of conscience, which we say are born of nature, are born of custom. —MONTAIGNE Table of Contents Prologue 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 Epilogue Author's Note About the Author PROLOGUE September 8, 2005 Autumn is a glorious season, despite its frequent use as a metaphor for approaching death and dying. Nowhere is its invigorating ambience and riotous color more apparent than in the northeastern United States. Even in early September the hot, hazy, humid days of the New England summer are progressively replaced by crystalline days with cool, clear, dry air and azure skies. September 8, 2005, was a case in point. Not a cloud marred the translucent sky from Maine to New Jersey, and within the macadam maze of downtown Boston and the concrete grid of New York City, the temperature was a comfortable seventy-seven degrees Fahrenheit. As the day drew to a close, two doctors coincidentally and reluctantly fumbled to pull their ringing cell phones from their belt clips in their respective cities. Neither was happy about the intrusion. Each was fearful that the melodic ring would herald a crisis that would require their professional attention and presence. An inopportune interruption, as both individuals were anticipating interesting personal evening activities. Unfortunately, the doctors' intuitions were correct, since both calls were to give credence to autumn's metaphorical reputation. The call in Boston concerned someone about to die with the acute onset of chest pain, profound weakness, and difficulty breathing, while the one in New York was about someone recently but clearly already dead. Both situations were emergencies for the respective physicians, necessitating that they put their private plans on hold. What the doctors didn't know was that one of the calls would initiate a sequence of events that would seriously impact them both, put both in jeopardy, and turn them into bitter enemies, and the other call would ultimately put a different spin on the first! BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 7:10 p.m. Dr. Craig Bowman let his arms dangle at his sides for a moment to relieve his aching forearm muscles. He had been standing in front of the mirror that was attached to the backside of the closet door, struggling to tie a black formal bow tie. He'd worn a tuxedo at most a half dozen times in his life, the first time at his high-school prom and the last time when he got married, and on all of those previous occasions, he'd been satisfied to snap on a pre-tied model that came with the rented tux. But now, in his reincarnation of himself, he wanted the genuine article. He'd bought himself a brand-new tuxedo and wasn't about to settle for a fake tie. The trouble was, he really didn't know how to tie it and had been embarrassed to ask the salesclerk. At the time, he hadn't been worried since he figured it would somehow be similar to tying his shoes. Sadly, it was proving to be a lot different, and he had been attempting to tie the blasted thing for a good ten minutes. Luckily, Leona, his new and dynamite secretary-cum-life clerk and even newer companion, had been preoccupied with her makeup in the bathroom. Worst case, he'd have to ask her if she knew how to do it. Craig really didn't want to do that. They hadn't been seeing each other socially that long, and Craig preferred that she maintain her apparent belief in his sophistication, fearing he'd otherwise never hear the end of it. Leona had what his maternally receptionist-secretary and his nurse called a "mouth." Tactfulness wasn't her strong suit. Craig shot a quick glance in Leona's direction. The door to the bathroom was ajar, and she was doing her eyes, but all he could see was a side view of her curvaceous twenty-three-year-old derrière covered with a lustrous pink silk crepe. She was on her tiptoes, leaning over the sink to get closer to the mirror. A fleeting, self-satisfied smile passed over Craig's face as he thought of them walking down the aisle of Symphony Hall that evening, which was why they were getting decked out in their finery. Compensating for being a "mouth," Leona was a "looker," especially in the low-cut dress that they had recently bought at Neiman Marcus. He was sure she was going to turn some heads and that he'd be dodging some envious looks from fellow forty-five-year-old men. Craig realized such feelings were rather juvenile, to say the least, but he'd not felt them since that first time he'd worn a tuxedo, and he was going to enjoy it. WC2R 0RL, England This is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are the product of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously, and any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, business establishments, events, or locales is entirely coincidental. CRISIS A Berkley Book / published by arrangement with the author PRINTING HISTORY G.P. Putnam's Sons hardcover edition / July 2006 Berkley premium edition / August 2007 Copyright © 2006 by Robin Cook Cover design copyright © 2006 by Thomas Tafuri. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, scanned, or distributed in any printed or electronic form without permission. Please do not participate in or encourage piracy of copyrighted materials in violation of the author's rights. Purchase only authorized editions. For information, address: The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014, ISBN: 978-1-101-20609-6 BERKLEY® Berkley Books are published by The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014. BERKLEY® is a registered trademark of Penguin Group (USA) Inc. The "B" design is a trademark belonging to Penguin Group (USA) Inc. PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1 If you purchased this book without a cover, you should be aware that this book is stolen property. It was reported as "unsold and destroyed" to the publisher, and neither the author nor the publisher has received any payment for this "stripped book." ACKNOWLEDGMENTS As usual in writing my fact-based novels, I've had to rely on friends and acquaintances to answer my innumerable pesky questions. It was especially important for Crisis, since the story line bridges medicine and law. Although I thank everyone who was graciously willing to help, those whom I would particularly like to cite are (in alphabetical order): John W. Bresnahan, investigator, Division of Professional Licensure, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Jean R. Cook, psychologist Joe Cox, J.D., LL.M., tax and estate-planning attorney Rose Doherty, academician Mark Flomenbaum, M.D., Ph.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Peter C. Knight, J.D., malpractice attorney Angelo MacDonald, J.D., criminal law attorney, former prosecutor Gerald D. McLellan, J.D., family law attorney, former judge Charles Wetli, M.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Suffolk County, New York This book is dedicated to the contemporary medical professionalism as promulgated by the Physician Charter, in hope that it takes root and flourishes....; Make way, Hippocrates! The laws of conscience, which we say are born of nature, are born of custom. —MONTAIGNE Table of Contents Prologue 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 Epilogue Author's Note About the Author PROLOGUE September 8, 2005 Autumn is a glorious season, despite its frequent use as a metaphor for approaching death and dying. Nowhere is its invigorating ambience and riotous color more apparent than in the northeastern United States. Even in early September the hot, hazy, humid days of the New England summer are progressively replaced by crystalline days with cool, clear, dry air and azure skies. September 8, 2005, was a case in point. Not a cloud marred the translucent sky from Maine to New Jersey, and within the macadam maze of downtown Boston and the concrete grid of New York City, the temperature was a comfortable seventy-seven degrees Fahrenheit. As the day drew to a close, two doctors coincidentally and reluctantly fumbled to pull their ringing cell phones from their belt clips in their respective cities. Neither was happy about the intrusion. Each was fearful that the melodic ring would herald a crisis that would require their professional attention and presence. An inopportune interruption, as both individuals were anticipating interesting personal evening activities. Unfortunately, the doctors' intuitions were correct, since both calls were to give credence to autumn's metaphorical reputation. The call in Boston concerned someone about to die with the acute onset of chest pain, profound weakness, and difficulty breathing, while the one in New York was about someone recently but clearly already dead. Both situations were emergencies for the respective physicians, necessitating that they put their private plans on hold. What the doctors didn't know was that one of the calls would initiate a sequence of events that would seriously impact them both, put both in jeopardy, and turn them into bitter enemies, and the other call would ultimately put a different spin on the first! BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 7:10 p.m. Dr. Craig Bowman let his arms dangle at his sides for a moment to relieve his aching forearm muscles. He had been standing in front of the mirror that was attached to the backside of the closet door, struggling to tie a black formal bow tie. He'd worn a tuxedo at most a half dozen times in his life, the first time at his high-school prom and the last time when he got married, and on all of those previous occasions, he'd been satisfied to snap on a pre-tied model that came with the rented tux. But now, in his reincarnation of himself, he wanted the genuine article. He'd bought himself a brand-new tuxedo and wasn't about to settle for a fake tie. The trouble was, he really didn't know how to tie it and had been embarrassed to ask the salesclerk. At the time, he hadn't been worried since he figured it would somehow be similar to tying his shoes. Sadly, it was proving to be a lot different, and he had been attempting to tie the blasted thing for a good ten minutes. Luckily, Leona, his new and dynamite secretary-cum-life clerk and even newer companion, had been preoccupied with her makeup in the bathroom. Worst case, he'd have to ask her if she knew how to do it. Craig really didn't want to do that. They hadn't been seeing each other socially that long, and Craig preferred that she maintain her apparent belief in his sophistication, fearing he'd otherwise never hear the end of it. Leona had what his maternally receptionist-secretary and his nurse called a "mouth." Tactfulness wasn't her strong suit. Craig shot a quick glance in Leona's direction. The door to the bathroom was ajar, and she was doing her eyes, but all he could see was a side view of her curvaceous twenty-three-year-old derrière covered with a lustrous pink silk crepe. She was on her tiptoes, leaning over the sink to get closer to the mirror. A fleeting, self-satisfied smile passed over Craig's face as he thought of them walking down the aisle of Symphony Hall that evening, which was why they were getting decked out in their finery. Compensating for being a "mouth," Leona was a "looker," especially in the low-cut dress that they had recently bought at Neiman Marcus. He was sure she was going to turn some heads and that he'd be dodging some envious looks from fellow forty-five-year-old men. Craig realized such feelings were rather juvenile, to say the least, but he'd not felt them since that first time he'd worn a tuxedo, and he was going to enjoy it. WC2R 0RL, England This is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are the product of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously, and any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, business establishments, events, or locales is entirely coincidental. CRISIS A Berkley Book / published by arrangement with the author PRINTING HISTORY G.P. Putnam's Sons hardcover edition / July 2006 Berkley premium edition / August 2007 Copyright © 2006 by Robin Cook Cover design copyright © 2006 by Thomas Tafuri. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, scanned, or distributed in any printed or electronic form without permission. Please do not participate in or encourage piracy of copyrighted materials in violation of the author's rights. Purchase only authorized editions. For information, address: The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014, ISBN: 978-1-101-20609-6 BERKLEY® Berkley Books are published by The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014. BERKLEY® is a registered trademark of Penguin Group (USA) Inc. The "B" design is a trademark belonging to Penguin Group (USA) Inc. PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1 If you purchased this book without a cover, you should be aware that this book is stolen property. It was reported as "unsold and destroyed" to the publisher, and neither the author nor the publisher has received any payment for this "stripped book." ACKNOWLEDGMENTS As usual in writing my fact-based novels, I've had to rely on friends and acquaintances to answer my innumerable pesky questions. It was especially important for Crisis, since the story line bridges medicine and law. Although I thank everyone who was graciously willing to help, those whom I would particularly like to cite are (in alphabetical order): John W. Bresnahan, investigator, Division of Professional Licensure, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Jean R. Cook, psychologist Joe Cox, J.D., LL.M., tax and estate-planning attorney Rose Doherty, academician Mark Flomenbaum, M.D., Ph.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Peter C. Knight, J.D., malpractice attorney Angelo MacDonald, J.D., criminal law attorney, former prosecutor Gerald D. McLellan, J.D., family law attorney, former judge Charles Wetli, M.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Suffolk County, New York This book is dedicated to the contemporary medical professionalism as promulgated by the Physician Charter, in hope that it takes root and flourishes....; Make way, Hippocrates! The laws of conscience, which we say are born of nature, are born of custom. —MONTAIGNE Table of Contents Prologue 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 Epilogue Author's Note About the Author PROLOGUE September 8, 2005 Autumn is a glorious season, despite its frequent use as a metaphor for approaching death and dying. Nowhere is its invigorating ambience and riotous color more apparent than in the northeastern United States. Even in early September the hot, hazy, humid days of the New England summer are progressively replaced by crystalline days with cool, clear, dry air and azure skies. September 8, 2005, was a case in point. Not a cloud marred the translucent sky from Maine to New Jersey, and within the macadam maze of downtown Boston and the concrete grid of New York City, the temperature was a comfortable seventy-seven degrees Fahrenheit. As the day drew to a close, two doctors coincidentally and reluctantly fumbled to pull their ringing cell phones from their belt clips in their respective cities. Neither was happy about the intrusion. Each was fearful that the melodic ring would herald a crisis that would require their professional attention and presence. An inopportune interruption, as both individuals were anticipating interesting personal evening activities. Unfortunately, the doctors' intuitions were correct, since both calls were to give credence to autumn's metaphorical reputation. The call in Boston concerned someone about to die with the acute onset of chest pain, profound weakness, and difficulty breathing, while the one in New York was about someone recently but clearly already dead. Both situations were emergencies for the respective physicians, necessitating that they put their private plans on hold. What the doctors didn't know was that one of the calls would initiate a sequence of events that would seriously impact them both, put both in jeopardy, and turn them into bitter enemies, and the other call would ultimately put a different spin on the first! BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 7:10 p.m. Dr. Craig Bowman let his arms dangle at his sides for a moment to relieve his aching forearm muscles. He had been standing in front of the mirror that was attached to the backside of the closet door, struggling to tie a black formal bow tie. He'd worn a tuxedo at most a half dozen times in his life, the first time at his high-school prom and the last time when he got married, and on all of those previous occasions, he'd been satisfied to snap on a pre-tied model that came with the rented tux. But now, in his reincarnation of himself, he wanted the genuine article. He'd bought himself a brand-new tuxedo and wasn't about to settle for a fake tie. The trouble was, he really didn't know how to tie it and had been embarrassed to ask the salesclerk. At the time, he hadn't been worried since he figured it would somehow be similar to tying his shoes. Sadly, it was proving to be a lot different, and he had been attempting to tie the blasted thing for a good ten minutes. Luckily, Leona, his new and dynamite secretary-cum-life clerk and even newer companion, had been preoccupied with her makeup in the bathroom. Worst case, he'd have to ask her if she knew how to do it. Craig really didn't want to do that. They hadn't been seeing each other socially that long, and Craig preferred that she maintain her apparent belief in his sophistication, fearing he'd otherwise never hear the end of it. Leona had what his maternally receptionist-secretary and his nurse called a "mouth." Tactfulness wasn't her strong suit. Craig shot a quick glance in Leona's direction. The door to the bathroom was ajar, and she was doing her eyes, but all he could see was a side view of her curvaceous twenty-three-year-old derrière covered with a lustrous pink silk crepe. She was on her tiptoes, leaning over the sink to get closer to the mirror. A fleeting, self-satisfied smile passed over Craig's face as he thought of them walking down the aisle of Symphony Hall that evening, which was why they were getting decked out in their finery. Compensating for being a "mouth," Leona was a "looker," especially in the low-cut dress that they had recently bought at Neiman Marcus. He was sure she was going to turn some heads and that he'd be dodging some envious looks from fellow forty-five-year-old men. Craig realized such feelings were rather juvenile, to say the least, but he'd not felt them since that first time he'd worn a tuxedo, and he was going to enjoy it. WC2R 0RL, England This is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are the product of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously, and any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, business establishments, events, or locales is entirely coincidental. CRISIS A Berkley Book / published by arrangement with the author PRINTING HISTORY G.P. Putnam's Sons hardcover edition / July 2006 Berkley premium edition / August 2007 Copyright © 2006 by Robin Cook Cover design copyright © 2006 by Thomas Tafuri. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, scanned, or distributed in any printed or electronic form without permission. Please do not participate in or encourage piracy of copyrighted materials in violation of the author's rights. Purchase only authorized editions. For information, address: The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014, ISBN: 978-1-101-20609-6 BERKLEY® Berkley Books are published by The Berkley Publishing Group, a division of Penguin Group (USA) Inc., 375 Hudson Street, New York, New York 10014. BERKLEY® is a registered trademark of Penguin Group (USA) Inc. The "B" design is a trademark belonging to Penguin Group (USA) Inc. PRINTED IN THE UNITED STATES OF AMERICA 10 9 8 7 6 5 4 3 2 1 If you purchased this book without a cover, you should be aware that this book is stolen property. It was reported as "unsold and destroyed" to the publisher, and neither the author nor the publisher has received any payment for this "stripped book." ACKNOWLEDGMENTS As usual in writing my fact-based novels, I've had to rely on friends and acquaintances to answer my innumerable pesky questions. It was especially important for Crisis, since the story line bridges medicine and law. Although I thank everyone who was graciously willing to help, those whom I would particularly like to cite are (in alphabetical order): John W. Bresnahan, investigator, Division of Professional Licensure, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Jean R. Cook, psychologist Joe Cox, J.D., LL.M., tax and estate-planning attorney Rose Doherty, academician Mark Flomenbaum, M.D., Ph.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Commonwealth of Massachusetts Peter C. Knight, J.D., malpractice attorney Angelo MacDonald, J.D., criminal law attorney, former prosecutor Gerald D. McLellan, J.D., family law attorney, former judge Charles Wetli, M.D., Chief Medical Examiner, Suffolk County, New York This book is dedicated to the contemporary medical professionalism as promulgated by the Physician Charter, in hope that it takes root and flourishes....; Make way, Hippocrates! The laws of conscience, which we say are born of nature, are born of custom. —MONTAIGNE Table of Contents Prologue 1 2 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 14 15 16 17 18 19 20 21 22 23 24 Epilogue Author's Note About the Author PROLOGUE September 8, 2005 Autumn is a glorious season, despite its frequent use as a metaphor for approaching death and dying. Nowhere is its invigorating ambience and riotous color more apparent than in the northeastern United States. Even in early September the hot, hazy, humid days of the New England summer are progressively replaced by crystalline days with cool, clear, dry air and azure skies. September 8, 2005, was a case in point. Not a cloud marred the translucent sky from Maine to New Jersey, and within the macadam maze of downtown Boston and the concrete grid of New York City, the temperature was a comfortable seventy-seven degrees Fahrenheit. As the day drew to a close, two doctors coincidentally and reluctantly fumbled to pull their ringing cell phones from their belt clips in their respective cities. Neither was happy about the intrusion. Each was fearful that the melodic ring would herald a crisis that would require their professional attention and presence. An inopportune interruption, as both individuals were anticipating interesting personal evening activities. Unfortunately, the doctors' intuitions were correct, since both calls were to give credence to autumn's metaphorical reputation. The call in Boston concerned someone about to die with the acute onset of chest pain, profound weakness, and difficulty breathing, while the one in New York was about someone recently but clearly already dead. Both situations were emergencies for the respective physicians, necessitating that they put their private plans on hold. What the doctors didn't know was that one of the calls would initiate a sequence of events that would seriously impact them both, put both in jeopardy, and turn them into bitter enemies, and the other call would ultimately put a different spin on the first! BOSTON, MASSACHUSETTS 7:10 p.m. Dr. Craig Bowman let his arms dangle at his sides for a moment to relieve his aching forearm muscles. He had been standing in front of the mirror that was attached to the backside of the closet door, struggling to tie a black formal bow tie. He'd worn a tuxedo at most a half dozen times in his life, the first time at his high-school prom and the last time when he got married, and on all of those previous occasions, he'd been satisfied to snap on a pre-tied model that came with the rented tux. But now, in his reincarnation of himself, he wanted the genuine article. He'd bought himself a brand-new tuxedo and wasn't about to settle for a fake tie. The trouble was, he really didn't know how to tie it and had been embarrassed to ask the salesclerk. At the time, he hadn't been worried since he figured it would somehow be similar to tying his shoes. Sadly, it was proving to be a lot different, and he had been attempting to tie the blasted thing for a good ten minutes. Luckily, Leona, his new and dynamite secretary-cum-life clerk and even newer companion, had been preoccupied with her makeup in the bathroom. Worst case, he'd have to ask her if she knew how to do it. Craig really didn't want to do that. They hadn't been seeing each other socially that long, and Craig preferred that she maintain her apparent belief in his sophistication, fearing he'd otherwise never hear the end of it. Leona had what his maternally receptionist-secretary and his nurse called a "mouth." Tactfulness wasn't her strong suit. Craig shot a quick glance in Leona's direction. The door to the bathroom was ajar, and she was doing her eyes, but all he could see was a side view of her curvaceous twenty-three-year-old derrière covered with a lustrous pink silk crepe. She was on her tiptoes, leaning over the sink to get closer to the mirror. A fleeting, self-satisfied smile passed over Craig's face as he thought of them walking down the aisle of Symphony Hall that evening, which was why they were getting decked out in their finery. Compensating for being a "mouth," Leona was a "looker," especially in the low-cut dress that they had recently bought at Neiman Marcus. He was sure she was going to turn some heads and that he'd be dodging some envious looks from fellow forty-five-year-old men. Craig realized such feelings were rather juvenile, to say the least, but he'd not felt them since that first time he'd worn a tuxedo, and he was going to enjoy it. WC2R 0RL, England This is a work of fiction. Names, characters, places, and incidents either are the product of the author's imagination or are used fictitiously, and any resemblance to actual persons, living or dead, business establishments, events, or locales is entirely coincidental. CRISIS A Berkley Book / published by arrangement with the author PRINTING HISTORY G.P. Putnam's Sons hardcover edition / July 2006 Berkley premium edition / August 2007 Copyright © 2006 by Robin Cook Cover design copyright © 2006 by Thomas Tafuri. All rights reserved. No part of this book may be reproduced, scanned, or distributed in any printed or electronic form without permission. Please