Cvs sales ad this week

We hope you love the products we recommend! All of them were independently selected by our editors. Just so you know, BuzzFeed may collect a share of sales or other compensation from the links on this page if you decide to shop from them. Oh, and FYI — prices are accurate and items in stock as of time of publication. CVS has made saving money a bit easier, thanks to its digital circular called myWeekly Ad, which is designed to serve up a personalized version of the sales ad for each customer based on what they have purchased in the past. According to CVS, "Shoppers who use the new myWeekly Ad no longer have to browse each page of a paper circular to find the deals that interest them. Instead, upon signing up, each user will immediately see which of their favorite items are on sale that week, including frequently bought items or hot deals in categories that might be of interest to that specific shopper. Personalized ExtraCare savings and rewards can also be found all in one place, making it easier for customers to see their available offers before they shop." To get started with MyWeekly Ad, navigate to the CVS MyWeekly Ad web page and log in to your account (or create one). Next, you will see a MyWeekly Ad form, asking for your name and ExtraCare card number. If you do not know your number, go to the top bar and select "My Account" where there is a section that provides your account information, including the number. Next, you will see the "What's Your Store?" webpage. Select the CVS location where you most often shop. Note: If you do not include your ExtraCare card number or if you do not have one, you will come to a page asking you to input your number or to sign up as a new member. Next, you will see your personal myWeekly Ad displaying the deals on products that you most often buy. On the top bar of that page, you can select from the different options to view ads. Your Deals: Highlights up front those products on sale each week that you most frequently purchase. Recommended Deals: Suggestions on deals from the weekly circular that may interest you based on categories and products that you have purchased in the past. ExtraCare Savings: Displays all personalized savings and rewards currently available. You can either print the offers or select "Send to Card" to digitally send select offers to your ExtraCare card before shopping. myShopping List: This is where you can create your own digital shopping list with the deals that you want to snag each week. It will tell you where the product is in your store, by aisle. The shopping list is shareable and can be printed, emailed or viewed on a mobile phone. myPurchase History: myWeekly Ad keeps a secure purchase history for you to reference. You can view the items that you have purchased over the past 18 months and see if they are on sale, or add any of them to the current shopping list. Deal Details: You can access information on all items that are part of an offer that week, eliminating any confusion about whether a specific product is part of the sale. Convenience On-The-Go: In addition to seeing your personalized offers on CVS.com, you can also access myWeekly Ad via your mobile device and tablet. Sneak Peek: You will be able to see next week's deals three days before the traditional circular is distributed on Sundays. Those enrolled can check back every week for new deals and can subscribe to email notifications to find out when new offers are available. You can also select the specific categories, for example, "Groceries," and see just the deals in that category. Above the bar, you will see the myWeekly Ad Disclosure that explains CVS policies and state-regulated policies. Be sure to check it out to avoid problems during checkout. If you prefer the old version of the circular, you can view it through this link. I give it five out of six stars and that is only because there are a few more options that I would like to see on it or that I have not discovered are there. Either way, it bumped the score down one star. What I really like about it is that I do not have to waste time looking at categories of products that I will probably never buy. I also appreciate the option of sending the deals to my ExtraCare card and finding out where a product is inside the store. My concerns with the ad are that CVS is not the only store that I shop and I have a habit of buying certain products from certain stores. It would break that habit if I saw the product cheaper at another store. I am concerned that by not browsing each page of the "paper" circular online, that I may miss a good deal. I realize that for now, I can still view the entire ad online, but I doubt that I will spend the time to look at both MyWeekly Ad and the older version. However, at this point, I can see where this is going to be a time saver. I also like how clear the ads are and it's easier to figure out what the deals/prices are. Do you buy the Sunday newspaper just for the sales ads? If so, now may be the time to cancel your subscription. Since most stores post their weekly sales circulars online, finding out what's on sale has never been easier. Here's where to go for your weekly sales ads. Find out what's on sale at your local big-box stores, so you can plan your next shopping trip, or place a pick up order. Target: See a deal you want to take advantage of? Use the "Quick List" feature to add it to your shopping list. You can click to add coupons to your Quick List, too, and even send them by text message to your phone. Want to check item availability? Just click on the item to see if it's available in a store near you. Wal-Mart: Flip through the ad to see the weekly sales, or use the "grid view" or categories functions to quickly drill down to the items you're interested in. Be sure to click the "coupons" tab to see if there are any you can use. The big drug store chains often release their sales ads a week early. Use this extra planning time to match up coupons to the deals. CVS: Select sales items, and add them to an in-store shopping list. You can view this week's ad and next week's, too. Rite Aid: Enter your zip code to view the ad for your local store. Select items in the ad to add to your shopping list. Walgreens: Click on items in the ad to view all the details. Then, send the deals your interested in to yourself via email, text, or social media. You can also access their weekly coupons. Find out what's on sale at your favorite grocery stores before you shop, or place an order online. Albertsons: This chain also operates Acme Markets, Jewel-Osco, Lucky, Safeway, Shaw's, Star Market and United Supermarkets. At their websites, you can locate your local store and view the weekly ad, selecting items and adding them to your shopping list. You can also look through their monthly savings book for coupons and deals. Kroger: This chain also operated Baker's Supermarkets, city Market, Dillons Food Stores, Food 4 Less, Foods Co, Fred Meyer, Ralphs, QFC and others. Save-a-Lot: View items in the weekly ad, and add them to a shopping list. Know when to get your gardening supplies, tools, paint, and other honey-do items. Ace: Select items on the weekly ad to place them on a list, or purchase them online. Home Depot: See what items are on sale; check whether the items you want are in stock; and arrange for home delivery or store pick up, all from within the ad. Lowes: Select items in the ad to buy them online. Find out when printer ink, paper and other office essentials are on sale. Office Depot and Office Max: The weekly ad allows you to see where items are in stock in your area. Includes product details and customer reviews. Staples: Their ad shows you sales, customer reviews, and allows you to order online, or arrange for one-hour pick up. Don't get burned paying full price for electronics. Check the ads so you can score deals. Best Buy: See the weekly ad for your local store. You can't always predict when you'll need parts, but you can look for deals on oil and fluids, windshield wipers, and other essentials. Advanced Auto Parts: Shop their monthly ad for deals. Allows you to build a shopping list. AutoZone: They put out a monthly ad. Switch to grid view for faster viewing. Pep Boys: Click on any of the items in their weekly ad for more information or to purchase. Whether you are buying clothing or shopping for appliances, look for the deals. JCPenney: See ads for this week and next week. Shop online or add to list. Macy's: Browse and add items to your cart or to a shopping list. Is now the time to buy fabric or shop for holiday decorations? Check the ads first. Hobby Lobby: Shop thousands of sales items from their weekly ad. Joann: Flip through the ad to see what's on sale. Then, make your purchase in store, online or arrange for same-day pick up. Michaels: View the current weekly ad, and get a sneak peak at next week's ad. Online ads have features that paper ads just can't offer. Most allow you to click on an item to find out more about the deal, and add it to your shopping list. Some even allow you to order online, or arrange for same-day pick up. And If your local store is out of an item, you can often check the inventory of other stores in your area, or have the item shipped to you, all from within the ad.
